Don't give up international students! Spread the support circle! Receive the support KOKORO!

~We have set up a support project for international students affected by COVID-19~

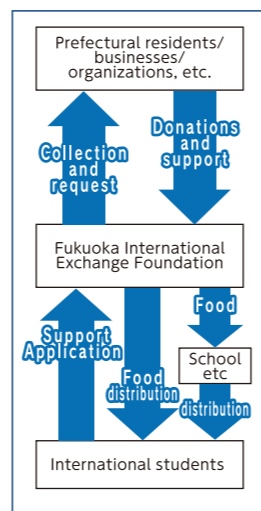

Fukuoka Prefecture has about 19,000 international students in Japan. They become valuable bridges that connect Japan and Fukuoka Prefecture with their home countries in the future. These international students are now in various complications due to the infections of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19). In order to support these international students, the International Exchange Foundation decided to work on a support project with the slogan, "Don't give up International Students!, Spread the support circle!, Send the Kokoro support!".

1st Food support project

From July 13th, we will start a "food support project" for maintaining their health. In this project, we will collect food donations from prefectural residents, municipalities, companies, groups, etc., send the food we receive to international students who need the food, and send everyone's thoughts to them with these food donations. We want international students to be healthy. We hope to have everyone's warm support and for your cooperation.

- Food we want donated
Rice, dry noodles, retort food, canned foods etc.
- Acceptance of food and contact

2nd Japanese learning support project

On July 27, we have started a "Japanese Language Learning Project". For this project, we will provide online learning materials created by Japanese teachers to create a learning opportunity to keep international students motivated who were refrain from going out during the corona virus infections (COVID-19) and have lost the place to practice learning Japanese. To facilitate all students, we will provide multiple levels of Japanese language materials to match the needs for each students. This support not only provide learning materials (questions/answers), this project will try to recreate the experience of the Japanese language classes on an online format. Videos of detailed explanation of the answers given by the Japanese instructors will be available on the International exchange foundation's website for a limited time. We hope that this will help students who want to study Japanese.

For more information please check the Fukuoka International Exchange Foundation website

"International student news" in a local newspaper

Recently, the number of international residents, including international students, has been increasing, and a multicultural society is beginning because of foreign people reside together in your own neighborhoods.

With the aim of letting the Fukuoka prefectural residents know what kind of lives the international students has, what their problems are, and what they are aiming for, a local newspaper company contacted the Fukuoka International Exchange Foundation, which has led the nation in providing support for international students and is a leader in supporting international students.

The Fukuoka International Foundation sees this as an excellent opportunity for residents of the prefecture to hear the real voices of these international students from the Fukuoka Overseas Student Association. At this center, we consider that it is a great opportunity for the prefectural residents to hear their voices, and students of the "Fukuoka International Student Association (FOSA)" organized by international students in this prefecture and International Exchange Foundation. From April, we have been supporting the serialization of the "International Student Newsletter" by the international students, once a week since April.

In this section, students talk honestly. You may find articles from your local international students in this section. Get to know their thoughts and feelings, and look forward to these articles!
